Today Friday, May 27, 2011, was Stacy Hargrove's last official day of work here at the NOAA Pacific Islands Fisheries Science Center (PIFSC) Marine Turtle Research Program (MTRP) in Hawaii. Stacy is relocating to the NOAA Southeast Fisheries Science Center in Miami where she will assume a new position and life where her husband has found secure employment commensurate with his professional standing and family needs. Stacy leaves the PIFSC with great reluctance and sadness, given her many accomplishments, enhancement of skills over the past 5+ years, and high level of professional job satisfaction. Stacy's significant contributions to the PIFSC, and to the research of Hawaiian sea turtles, have been prominently and voluminously voiced by all of us at several farewell functions in recent days.

The MTRP I've been a part of since 1981 is forever indebted to and thankful for Stacy for leaving the program in a much improved state than when she arrived. And doing so in a manner harmonious with the true teamwork Spirit of Aloha.

Thank you Sincerely Stacy, from George Balazs and Our Team
