YUCCA VALLEY HISTORY/ORDINANCES

The Lone Star Ranch at the site of the Present Plaza. Walter Harrell moved there in 1923, establishing the first gas station between Whitewater and Twentynine Palms. Mr. Harrell wanted the town named Lone Star and the name was shown on the AAA maps of the Mojave and Colorado deserts from 1937 until 1949, when it was changed on the maps to Yucca Valley. The area was known by three names: Yucca Valley, Lone Star and Warren's Well, by the local homesteaders, cattlemen and travelers. The name was officially changed to Yucca Valley in 1945 when the Post Office was started. Hilda Hardesty was given the choice of Lone Star or Yucca Valley and chose the latter when the Post Office was opened at the Hardesty Market.

Yucca Valley's background is mining and cattle. Although there were few mines in the west end of the Greater Morongo Basin, the Twentynine Palms Mining District had many mines, both large and small, and Yucca Valley was a way station for the wagons that brought in men and supplies to the mines and carried out ore.

During the 1880's the Hi-Desert became primarily a cattle range with a number of large cattle companies based in the Banning, Big Bear area running their herds from Morongo Valley to Twentynine Palms. Warren's Well in Yucca Valley was headquarters for cowboys of the Barker and Shay, Talmadge, Jim Smart (the IS outfit) and Chase and Law ranches, whose cattle ranged the Hi-Desert in winter. Warren's Well was head-quarters for the spring and fall roundups until World War II. The last cattle drive went through Yucca Valley in 1947.

Homesteaders began to move into the Hi-Desert during the 1870's. Many of the early ones were squatters and never proved up their claims. But by the early 1900's families were moving into the area from Morongo Valley to Twentynine Palms to file their claims and patent them. Following World War I many disabled veterans came to the Hi-Desert seeking health.

The Homestead Era continued on into the 1950's after the 5-acre "jackrabbit" homesteads became available.

The first subdivisions laying out streets and beginning a town were started in 1946, one in the western end, centering at Pioneertown Road, and one further east along Old Woman Springs Road (known as Victorville Road).

In a few years Yucca Valley had become a boom town and the boom has never ended. New residents were drawn by the clean air, pure water and sunshine, and the miles of open land. The

At the summit of the old Whitewater Hill road looking west across the San Gorgonio Pass. This hill-road was used for many years, crossing the Whitewater River bed, then climbing Whitewater Hill (where signs of it may still be seen) to Devil's Garden and Morongo Canyon. The Smalleys and Mr. Fuller (in the center).

Joshua Tree National Monument with more than 850,000 square miles and the federal land closed to development guarantee openness to residents and visitors to the Hi-Desert even though there are now approximately 18,500 residents in Yucca Valley and more thousands in other communities of the Hi-Desert.

Yucca Valley is today a modern progressive community with all the charm of country living. It's the community many families are choosing to move to, to live and work and raise their families in, and to retire in. It's a community where one can set his own pace . . . enjoy each sunfilled day.

BUSINESS / INDUSTRY / UTILITIES

Yucca Valley today is booming with commercial and residential developments. Today's assessed valuation is approximately $45 million.

Building construction is Yucca Valley's biggest industry . . . building permits for 1978 totaled more than $25 million. For the first three months of 1979 permits were issued for units totaling $3,768,783.

Low cost, plenty of land, pure water and a large untapped labor pool to draw from are all enticing factors to bring in industry. Business and service organizations are attracted by the 50,000 trading population.

- Industries . . . Adtech Power, Inc., makers of power converters, employs 16 persons. The factory is scheduled to occupy a new 1200-square-foot building and will eventually employ 150. Hawk Industries, Aircraft Division, does research and development in water well and oil well equipment and aircraft. Yucca Valley Industries assembles bird respirators, machines parts and does electronic assembly. Omni Products is an electronics sub-contractor. Parthen Products makes heavy machinery parts.
- Airport . . . 4200 foot surfaced and lighted runway, aircraft gas.
- Financial Institutions . . . Bank of America, Security Pacific National Bank, Allstate Savings and Loan, Colorado River Federal Savings and Loan and Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan.
- Super Markets . . . Safeway and Vons, with new facilities proposed for each. Stater Bros. is also proposed.
- Shopping Centers . . . Arbor Mall, Cornet Village, Hi-D Plaza, Ideal Mall, Santa Fe Plaza, Village Center and Vons.
- Motels and Restaurants . . . Yucca Valley has eight motels and seven mobile home parks and twenty-two restaurants, coffee shops and fast food shops.
- Cemetery . . . Mountain Valley Memorial Park opened in 1973, an endowment care Cemetery and Mausoleum. It is located midway between Yucca Valley and Joshua Tree.

Yucca Valley is blessed with an abundance of pure soft water.

Water is of prime importance in desert areas. Without it, there is no development. The Hi Desert is fortunate in having a plentiful supply in huge underground basins. Chemical tests of Hi-Desert water prove it to be exceptionally pure and good tasting.
