

The Honolulu Advertiser Wednesday, May 16, 1990 A13

Letters

Two-ended food chain

George Balazs says more turtles means fewer jellyfish. I contend that more turtles means more tiger sharks, the predator of the turtles. Just ask the divers... The tigers are coming close to shore.

We have a lot of turtles now, and I feel that we need some sort of balance to offset this situation. Maybe a bounty for the tiger sharks, or set an open season for turtles once in a while.

I would rather be stung by jellyfish than be devoured by the tiger.

L. OSATO