MOUSEKARTOON Drawing Lesson

The Mouseketeers persuaded Mickey to pose for his portrait. You can learn how to draw Mickey Mouse, too! First get your pencil and paper, and then you are ready to go!

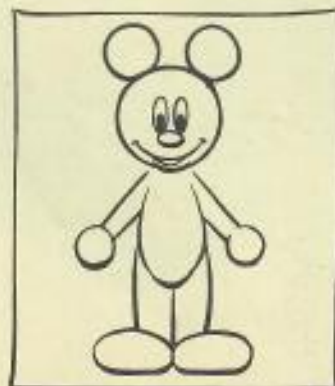

Draw a large circle for Mickey's head, two smaller circles for his ears, and the smallest one for his nose.

Then add to Mickey's head a larger oval shape for the body, and also his legs and feet.

Next, add Mickey's arms and hands, his eyes and a happy Mouseketeer smile for his face.

Finally, finish up all the extras, and you will have a Mouseketeer drawing of Mickey all ready to color.

THE MOUSEKETEERS FUN GAME

Here's a fun game that the Mouseketeers play at their club meetings. You can play it, too!

First, find a feather. Then tie a string between two chairs. Each player must blow the feather back and forth over the string, and keep it from touching the floor. Every time one of the Mouseketeers allows the feather to go under the string or touch the floor, he loses a point to his partner.

Start with ten points each . . . and whoever keeps his points the longest is the winner!

Pick a NUMBER & "pick your FUTURE"

Have you decided what you want to become — when you are grown and there's work to be done? Well, just for fun, pick a number from 1 to 30, then count the circles until you come to the number you have picked to see what your "future" is!

To play this game of fortune with your friends, number 30 slips of paper, 1 to 30, and mix them up in a bowl. One person draws a number and counts to his "future," without letting anyone see. Then he pantomimes the actions describing the profession he has picked—the one who guesses the "future" then takes a turn. The game continues until all have played—whoever makes the most correct guesses wins.
