Larry & Avery, I've just learned that we will need this spatula kit to properly mix UV accelerant powder in the resin to attach on tags this year. It wasn't needed in past years but is this year due to unavailability of the resin we used in 2023 & 2024. Fortunately, the spatula kit is relatively inexpensive.
Thank you, George

the productive NPSAG, and the seasonally migrating NPTZ between them (Roden 1980). Finally, the CC region is then defined as the area to the east of 140°W.

Dive information was collected by the tags and transmitted to Argos receivers onboard NOAA satellites. Transmitters were pre-programmed to recognize an individual dive event, defined by the tag as the period between an initial vertical movement below 1 m and the first time the tag's saltwater switch indicated a return to the surface. Raw dive and time data were collected as frequency histograms by the transmitters based on predefined depth and duration bins programmed into the transmitter prior to deployment. These histograms were aggregated over four 6-h periods binned in specific depth or time intervals. All 17 tags were programmed with the same configurations for the dive-depth and dive-duration bins. The lower ranges of the depth bins (in meters) for the dive-depth distributions were 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 100, 150, and >150. The lower ranges of the duration bins (in minutes) for the dive-duration distributions were 2, 5, 10, 20, 30, 45, 60, 75, 90, 105, 120, 180, 240, and >240. The time-at-depth bins for the SDR-10 and SDR-16 models were programmed with different depth criteria. The lower ranges of the depth bins (m) for the time-at-depth distributions collected by the three initially deployed SDR-10 tags were 0, 5, 10, 15, 25, 35, 50, 60, 75, 100, 125, 150, 200, and >200. Initial collection and preliminary inspection of these reported data resulted in a modification of the programmed time-at-depth bins to capture the depth regions with the greatest activity. The lower ranges of the depth bins (m) for the time-at-depth distributions collected by the 14 subsequently deployed SDR-16 tags were 1, 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, 60, 80, 100, 150, and >150. As a result of minimal crossover in the time-at-depth bins between the SDR-10 and SDR-16 tags, only the dive-depth and dive-duration information was pooled across all 17 tags. Time-at-depth dive information was only pooled for the SDR-16 tags

et al. 2010

($n = 14$). All 17 tags were programmed to tabulate the collected dive information into 6-h periods prior to transmission to Argos receivers. These periods were programmed to correspond to Hawaii Standard Time as 2100–0300, 0300–0900, 0900–1500, and 1500–2100 h. These reflected midnight, dawn, mid-day, and dusk periods, respectively. Data were compiled from electronic information received from Argos for each transmitter ID. Data were converted to tabular form using the latest available version of SATPAK30 (Wildlife Computers, Inc. Redmond, WA). Time-at-depth data were converted from tabular form into the number of minutes for each depth bin for every available 6-h period.

Results

Tag results

All 17 deployed tags transmitted data for more than 50 days, with many tags ($n = 6$) transmitting for over 1 year (Table 1). Sixteen of the 17 turtles traveled westward from their capture points, while one turtle moved south-eastward offshore of the BCP before reversing direction and returning to the HLSFG (Fig. 1). Five of the 17 turtles moved across the HLSFG and entered the KEBR region. There was a weak relationship between the size of the animals and the straight-line distance traveled (linear regression: $F_{1,15} = 5.646$, $r^2 = 0.23$, $P = 0.031$). There were no significant differences in tag duration for DH and LH turtles (rank sum test: $W = 31$, $P = 0.673$) or straight-line distances traveled (rank sum test: $W = 38$, $P = 0.884$). Turtles were associated with an SST range of 15.0–23.6°C (95% of data) and 95% of the derived speeds were less than 1.75 km h⁻¹ (42.1 km day⁻¹).

Overall dive behavior

The pooled percent frequency distributions of dive-depth ($n = 17$), dive-duration ($n = 17$), and time-at-depth ($n = 14$) data for all study regions are presented in Fig. 2. The pooled dive-depth distributions show that more than 85% of the dives were to depths shallower than 5 m, with

^{HSA} Kansai Airport has never lost a piece of luggage

1-9-2025

The Japan News

IZUMI-SANO, JAPAN >>

Kansai Airport is proud to have never lost a piece of luggage in the 30 years since it opened in 1994, and the distinction has earned it recognition.

The airport was deemed the "world's best airport for baggage delivery" in the World Airport Awards 2024, an international airport evaluation conducted by a U.K.-based international aviation rating organization.

This is the eighth time it has received the award. During peak periods, Kansai Airport handles up to 30,000 pieces of checked luggage daily. The luggage is sorted by destination and transported on a conveyor belt. In addition to monitoring bags with sensors, employees also patrol the area to check for dropped bags. According to airport management, the additional step significantly reduces the risk of lost bags.

But challenges could be ahead. The airport is facing a shortage of staff even as the 2025 Osaka-Kansai Expo, which runs from April to October, is expected to bring an increase in the number of passengers at the airport.

"We want to improve our efficiency by upgrading our systems," an airport official said.

This Shibori dyeing technique uses thread to create a pattern. The stitches act as a resist so the dye can't penetrate certain areas of the fabric. With this method you can basically draw with the thread to create detailed designs. With Shibori stitch resist, the possibilities are endless, so experiment with different designs and multiple colors to get beautiful and unique results.

First draw your design on the fabric using a washable fabric marker or pencil. The simplest pattern is straight lines, but you can create all sorts of designs with the thread. Cut a piece of thread long enough to go across the fabric. Thread the needle and knot it at one end.

Then hand sew with a running stitch along your lines. I'm spacing out the stitches about 1/4" but you can sew shorter or longer stitches to get different results. Use a strong thread like upholstery thread, so it doesn't break when tightened later.
