Dear Barbara:

As promised, I am sending you copies of background correspondence for the effort to achieve approval for sea turtles to be featured on U.S. commemorative postage stamps. As you will read, Dr. Carr readily agreed to submit the "proposing" letter. At the time, a wealthy fellow living here in Honolulu (Ed Mallett) was a member of the "Citizen's Stamp Advisory Committee". He was a "friend of a friend," so I was able to enlist him as an ally. Unfortunately, it wasn't enough, as another member (Mary Ann Owens) headed-up the subcommittee where the proposal was placed (they get thousands of requests each year!). She apparently didn't like it enough to move it along in the process, so there's where it died. In addition to the enclosed, I have about 100 copies of letters sent by people supporting the idea. About 100 others were sent (to the postmaster) that I didn't get copies of.

I would be delighted to work with you to try again. Once a decade is about all I can handle though!

Here are a few things to keep in mind. We need to determine who the players are now. I've haven't spoken with Mr. Mallet in years. When a stamp is selected, it takes several (3-4) years to be issued. Outside art work is almost never used. The postal Service commissions an artist after a subject receives approval. Politics and controversy can get in the way. The sea turtle proposal may have been sunk by controversy of shrimp trawling. Sadly, the same problem still exists and could be a serious impediment. For example, have you ever seen a whale/porpoise on a U.S. stamp?? I don't believe so.

Here are suggestions to consider - In honor of Dr. Carr, use his 1980 letter to re-propose the idea. Consider shooting for one stamp, instead of a set of 4. Have that one stamp show Dr. Carr and a turtle (green turtle of course). This latter idea might help generate double the constituency support. Believe me, much will be needed.

Lastly, I wanted to make you aware that I plan to have a poster paper at the Hilton Head meeting updating the 1983 stamp list/paper authored by Gomez and Balazs. A part time volunteer named Nancy Linsley has undertaken the update. Maybe there should be a side-by-side poster, by the two of us (Schroeder & Balazs, in that order) announcing the reproposal, soliciting letters, etc. But maybe this is "too soon" for your available time.

In short, I'm prepared to work with you to pursue any of this. But I ask that you be the "lead". Let me know your wishes.

Best regards,

Seay

FOR COMMEMORATIVE STAMPS FEATURING SEA TURTLES

February 13, 1980

DEPARTMENT OF ZOOLOGY
223 BARTRAM HALL
904-392-1107

Mr. William Bolger
Postmaster General
Washington, D.C. 20260

Dear Mr. Bolger:

I am writing to ask your committee to consider four species of marine turtles that occur in the United States as themes for a commemorative stamp issue. All of these unique reptiles are experiencing serious survival problems and are all protected under the United States Endangered Species Act.

Under the auspices of the United States State Department and a large number of conservation organizations, the United States was recently host to an International Symposium on Sea Turtle Conservation, attended by delegates from over 40 countries. One of the goals defined by the Scientific Committee of that conference was to increase public awareness of the survival status of, and principal threats to, existing populations of marine turtles. A commemorative stamp issue would contribute significantly to this end.

The names of species nominated, along with brief descriptions, are listed as follows:

1. Green Turtle (Chelonia mydas) - Once called the most valuable reptile in the world and formerly abundant in Florida and Texas, green turtle populations have drastically declined there and elsewhere in the world. Very recently the small Florida nesting colony, the only one in mainland U.S., appears to have increased slightly.

2. Loggerhead (Caretta caretta) - The loggerhead breeds farther north than any other sea turtle. In the U.S. its nesting shores extend from Florida to North Carolina, and those in Florida, from Jupiter Island to Cape Canaveral, are the most populous in the world.

3. Hawksbill (Eretmochelys imbricata) - This is the most tropical of the sea turtles. It nests singly or in little groups over an extensive tropical range. It is fairly numerous in reefs off southeastern Florida and the Keys. The price to which tortoiseshell has risen--up to $80 a pound or more--threatens the species with extinction.

4. Kemp's Ridley (Lepidochelys kempi) - One of the most clearly endangered vertebrate animals still alive. Its breeding colony in Mexico, once numbering up to 40,000, has dwindled to only a few hundred. It was until lately quite abundant in waters of the southern United States. During the past two years, a number of U.S. and Mexican agencies have been engaged in an emergency program to save the ridley.

During previous years several foreign countries have issued stamps portraying marine turtles. I enclose examples of several of these, and believe you'll agree that attractive artistry can be achieved with such subject matter.

I would be pleased to provide you with any additional information that might be needed in making an evaluation of this for a commemorative stamp featuring sea turtles.

Sincerely yours,

Archie Carr

MARCH - M^Y JULY 1980

Dear

As you will read in the attached correspondence, a proposal has recently been submitted to the US Postmaster General for the issuance of a block of four commemorative stamps displaying sea turtles. I am convinced that this is an extremely worthwhile endeavor with potential for stimulating further conservation and research of sea turtles, both here in the United States and in the numerous foreign countries that receive U. S. mail.

The chances of this stamp proposal being approved can be strengthened considerably if individuals and organizations express their strong support through letters written to the Postmaster General. I am therefore asking if you will take the time from your busy schedule to write such a letter of endorsement. Your letter should be addressed to:

Mr. William Bolger
Postmaster General
Washington, D. C. 20260

In order to take full advantage of the publicity and momentum generated by the recent Washington sea turtle conference, I hope you will be able to send off your words of support at the earliest possible date. Also, I would greatly appreciate receiving a blind carbon copy of your letter so that some assessment can be made of the magnitude of our campaign.

Thank you in advance for your valuable assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

GEORGE H. BALAZS

Mrs. Mary Ann Owens, MEMBER
Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee
P. O. Box 1164

Dear Mrs. Owens:

I thought it would be worthwhile to send you the enclosed collection of photographs and drawings for your consideration with the sea turtle stamp proposal. I have selected these views from my own personal files, but I want to assure you that a substantial amount of additional material displaying the four species of sea turtles can be assembled from other biologists when it becomes necessary.

There are basically six categories of sea turtle behavior and life stages that I feel could superbly portray these species on a stamp issue. These are: 1) a turtle swimming gracefully through the water; 2) a turtle nesting on a sand beach and laying her eggs; 3) a hatchling turtle coming out of a nest and running to the sea; 4) a turtle sleeping underwater under a coral ledge; 5) a turtle basking on a sand beach during the daytime; 6) a turtle feeding on seagrasses. With a block of four stamps showing the different species, each stamp could also include a different portrayal of behavior or life stage. This, in my opinion, would add even further to this attractive, exciting and appropriate subject.

Again, thank you for your consideration of this proposal.

Sincerely,

George H. Balazs

Mr. Edward Mallek
Member
Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee
4999 Kahala Avenue
Honolulu, Hawaii 96816

Dear Mr. Mallek:

My good friend and colleague, Dr. Leighton Taylor of the Waikiki Aquarium, has told me of your interest in the proposal to issue commemorative stamps displaying sea turtles. As a researcher and conservationist of sea turtles, I have been a strong supporter of this timely idea. Over the past few months, enthusiastic letters of endorsement have been sent to the Postmaster General by numerous individuals and organizations throughout the United States. For your background information, I have made copies of some of the more interesting and informative letters that have come to my attention. I am hopeful that you will have the opportunity to read through this enclosed material before the proposal comes before your committee for appraisal. It is my understanding that the next meeting of the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee will take place during early August, and that the sea turtle proposal will very likely be considered at that time. Based on a letter from the Postal Service dated 27 May 1980 (copy attached), Dr. Taylor and I were under the impression that the proposal was on the agenda for discussion at the June meeting.

In addition to constituting a part of the wildlife heritage of the coastal continental United States, sea turtles have historically been an integral part of Hawaiian and other native cultures in the Pacific region. This has encompassed such important and varied aspects as food sources, religion, art, folklore, medicine and the fashioning of useful implements such as fishhooks from the shell of the hawksbill turtle.

The current national and international interest in sea turtles makes it desirable for such a commemorative stamp topic, if approved, to be issued at the earliest possible time. I realize, however, that there are numerous constraints involved in the production and issuance of commemorative stamps.

If you have any additional questions concerning the merits of this stamp proposal, I would be most happy to talk to you by telephone (247-6631 or 395-6409) or meet with you in person at your convenience. I would also appreciate any advice that you can give me on how to further enhance the possibilities of the proposal being adopted. Would it be appropriate and worthwhile for me to send similar dossiers of endorsement letters to other members of the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee?

Mr. Edward Mallek, Member
Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee

Thank you for your assistance and interest in this matter.

Sincerely,

GEORGE H. BALAZS

Dear Mrs. Owens:

Mr. Edward Mallek, my fellow resident here in Hawaii, has told me of your interest in the sea turtle stamp proposal and requested that I provide you with background information. As a researcher and conservationist of our marine environment, I have been a strong supporter of this proposal, originally set forth by Dr. Archie Carr of the University of Florida, which requests the issuance of a set of four commemorative stamps displaying sea turtles. In addition to constituting a part of the wildlife heritage of the coastal continental United States and Caribbean region, sea turtles have historically been an integral part of Hawaiian and other native cultures here in the Pacific. This has encompassed such important and varied aspects as food sources, religion, art, folklore, medicine and the fashioning of useful implements such as fishhooks from the hawksbill turtle. The current national and international interest in sea turtles makes it desirable for such a stamp topic, if approved, to be issued at the earliest possible time. I realize, however, that there are numerous constraints involved in the production and issuance of commemorative stamps.

Over the past several months, enthusiastic letters of endorsement for the sea turtle proposal have been sent to the Postmaster General by numerous individuals and organizations throughout the United States. I have enclosed copies of some of the more interesting and informative letters that have come to my attention. In addition, I am sending an article on sea turtles authored by Dr. Carr which originally appeared in Audubon Magazine. I am hopeful that you will have the opportunity to read through this material before the proposal comes before your committee for final appraisal. It is my understanding that the next meeting of the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee will take place during October, and that the sea turtle proposal will be considered at that time.

Dear

One of the small conservation projects that we have undertaken here in the United States involves a letter writing campaign aimed at persuading our postal service to issue commemorative stamps displaying sea turtles. A copy of the original proposal, as well as a few representative letters of endorsement, have been attached to illustrate how we have thus far proceeded in this matter.

The portrayal of sea turtles on postage stamps provides an excellent means for creating public awareness of the need for both conservation and research. As you are probably aware, the subject material used on postage stamps usually relates to aspects of national heritage. Sea turtles would therefore be well suited as a stamp topic in the case of your own country. I do not know what procedures are followed by your postal service in adopting subject material, but I would like to suggest that you make the appropriate inquiries and give serious consideration to submitting a proposal for sea turtles. Postage stamps constitute important sources of revenue for most countries due to international sales to collectors. Government authorities are consequently continually searching for new and exciting topics. The suggestion of a sea turtle issue could very well be readily received and placed into action.

Sea turtles have already appeared on stamps issued by a number of countries. I have enclosed copies of several of these stamps for reference purposes. If you decide to pursue this matter further, as I hope you will, please do not hesitate to contact me if you think I can somehow be of assistance.

Best regards and Aloha,

Dear

As you will undoubtedly recall, last year you wrote a letter to the U.S. Postmaster General expressing support for the issuance of commemorative stamps portraying four species of sea turtles. I am pleased to report that your correspondence proved to be a valuable contribution to a file of over 200 letters endorsing this wildlife conservation theme.

I am writing to you at this time to let you know that the sea turtle proposal is still very much alive for use in a future stamp issue. I have been informed that each year the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee (appointed by the Postmaster General) receives several thousand suggestions for stamp themes. Obviously the vast majority of these topics have to be rejected and discarded due to the very limited number of commemorative stamps actually issued each year. The fact that the sea turtle proposal has been retained for further serious consideration is therefore a most encouraging sign. During the coming months I will continue to make periodic contact with the Stamps Division of the U. S. Postal Service, as well as one of the members of the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee that lives here in Hawaii. The Committee meets once every two months, and further action on the proposal is certainly possible in the near future. If and when a firm date is established for issuing the stamps, I will write to you again providing all of the details.

Thank you again for helping to support this worthy stamp proposal.

Sincerely,

George H. Balazs
